AUSTRIAN DEAD FILL RAVINES AND RIVER

London.—According to the Milan corespondent of the Daily Mail, the Austrian losses have been very heavy. Ravines on the Asingo plateau and Monte Grappa are filled with heaps of the dead. On the Plave the carnage is horrifying, the current carrying thousands of bodies together with broken-up barges and pontoons.

However, there was prima facie evi-dence at 4 o'clock that the sun did not get tired and rest awhile. On the contrary, he was extremely active, as was called to mind by limp collars and perspiring men everywhere. In fact, it seemed as if he just took occasion to prove that he does not suffer fatigue and shone down hotter than ever.

German People Will Not Bleed in War for Ideas," Says One Newspaper.

(By Cyril Brown, Staff Correspondent of the World.) [Copyright, 1918; New York World.] (Special Cable Dispatch.)

Amsterdam, June.—The kaiser is in Amsterdam, June.—The kaiser is in bad odor among wide circles of Ger-man public opinion as the result of his jubilee speech, and particularly with democratic circles, which were amazed by the imperial dictum with respect to the reason for a war to a finish be-tween Germanism and Anglo-Saxon-

The first reports indicate the bad effect on the masses, as war until German kultur triumphs over Anglo-Saxon kultur blasts all popular hope of an early peace by negotiation. The impression is that the kaiser has made the worst break of the war. The liberal Frankfurter Zeitung courageously tells the kaiser some unpleasant truths.

Kaiser's Idea Erroneous.

"Many Germans will not agree with what the kaiser said," it declared. "The kaiser assumed at the outbreak of the war to have seen more clearly than the majority of the German, people the real significance of the struggle. gle. Yes, it meant a world struggle, but not for the reason the kaiser gives for his opinion.

"The kaiser's interpretation merely repeats ideas which gained strong vogue during the last four years, but, despite their wide currency and popudespite their wide currency and popularity, they are, nevertheless, eroneous.

"It is by no means a struggle between two attitudes toward the world, but between two power complexes. The German people were not notified on Aug. 4, 1914, that they were going afield in order to fight against the Anglo-Saxon viewpoint of the world until it was unconditionally conquered.

"If the German people had been told this, even by velled hints, the lofty ulnty of will of the German nation would have been torn to pieces on the

I have given illustrations recently of the intensified German activity to develop new wrinkles or to make use of others which have been used by his enemies—such, for instance, as the use of airplanes to feed isolated units or or to convoy ammunition to them.

When I was on the Italian front for the World last winter the Italians were transporting food and ammunition by Capronis to isolated units. Now, according to German prisoners, this is to be done by the enemy in future when any German units become isolated, and it shows that the enemy is banking on warfare of a greatly more open variety than heretofore existed.

It is to be done by means of baskets with a parachute attachment, capable of carrying one day's rations for thirty men, or 980 rounds of small arms ammunition, or forty bombs, or medical equipment. The isolated units are to make known their needs by wireless or other agreed upon, signals.

Charnie Whitcomb was only 22 years of age and a bright future lay before him. A graduate of Chattanooga High school, he had for the past six months been representing the American Snuff company as a salesman and was recently notified that beginning with July 1 he would be promoted and granted a vacation of thirty days. It was Charnie's intention to enter a medical college upon the conclusion of the war. On Friday morning he started for LaFayette, Ga., in the interest of his firm, and at Noble the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a Central of Georgia train. Fatally injured, young Whitcomb was picked up, carried to LaFayette and given medical attention. He did not regain consciousness and died about three hours later. Wann's ambulance made a fast trip to the Georgia town, but the sufferer passed away before he could be brought home. His death is particularly sad, as he leaves a young wife and two little children, the oldest of whom, Charles William, is only nineteen months of age. A bill was filed in chancery court Saturday by Clark Bros., of Peoria, Ill., and the Chattanooga Bottle and Glass company to execute the affairs of the old Wakeman Distilling company, of Chattanooga, as an insolvent corpor-

The bill alleges that the company is insolvent, and that the objects of its incorporation are no longer possible of attainment by reason of its insolvency and the prohibition laws, and seeks to wind up its affairs as and seeks to wind up its analis as such. THREE DAUGHTERS LIKEBOYS Stubborn "Daddy" Who Wanted Son's Only Relents When Draft Came About. (International News Service.)

San Diego, Cal.—Always on the alert for draft evaders, the sheriff some time ago found on the Great Register the names o fthree voters or draft age who failed to register for the service. Further investigation showed that in the Pin Hills district fived a small family by the name of Smalley. Three names appeared—John, William and Harris. Armed with the proper papers the sheriff immediately nied himself into the mountains to arrest the suspected three slackers. After considerable trouble the sleuth found the Smalley ranch. He at once asked for John, William and Harris. And lo, and behold up stepped three beautiful dark-haired young ladies, each with a mil-lion-dollar smile which caused the officer to gasp, blink and then wipe off his brow.

As soon as the sheriff could recover, he asked for an explanation and learn-ed that "Daddy" Smalley was some stubborn individual and years ago had his heart set on having a family boys. He was so sure that before his first born had arrived he named it John. His disappointment was great when he was blessed with a daughter. but he stood pat and vowed the name John, would stand. His second child proved to be another girl, but the father had already named it William, and of course that name had to stand for all time. When the third babe was born "Daddy" was not quite so sure, but he had the nerve left to compromise and declared in advance the name would be "Harris"—and it was home, which, as is generally known, is the hardest time for them.

Every boy who leaves Chattanooga to join the army of selectmen should be supplied with a smileage book. This be supplied with a smileage book. This is the opinion of W. V. Turley, the newly appointed inspector for the Liberty theaters in the military cantonments located throughout the United States. Mr. Turley received his appointment from the war department, war camp community service division. Mr. Turley states that he thinks there should be some method by which these boys could be furnished with a $1 smileage book. The inspector says that a large number of these boys leave the city and are not provided with these tickets or any change at all for amusements. The result is that there are hundreds of them who spend many a lonesome hour in the evenings with absolutely nothing to do during the first month of their stay away from first month of their stay away from home, which, as is generally known, is the hardest time for them.

While there is no liberty theater at Fort Ogletherpe operated under the auspices of the war department, the drafted boys can use these tickets elsewhere, as the other cantonments are provided with these houses, with the exception of a very few.

In speaking of the condition at the camp at Chickamauga park, Mr. Turley stated that he believed if the people of Chattanooga would display enough interest in the matter a Liberty theater could be secured some time in the future for Chickamauga park. He said that the matter has not been pushed enough. Mr. Turley suggested that a committeme of business men go as a delegation to Washington from this city and visit the commission on training camp activities.

These theaters were first put up at the cantonments where the selectmen were being taken, as the committee in charge felt that they, being raw recruits, were the ones who needed the amusements in preference to the men who had been in the army for years and who had become accustomed to it.
